THE RIFLEMAN'S MUSEUM

Museum Entrance

This is the entrance to the Museum. Make sure you keep aware of cars which might be driving past or trying to park.

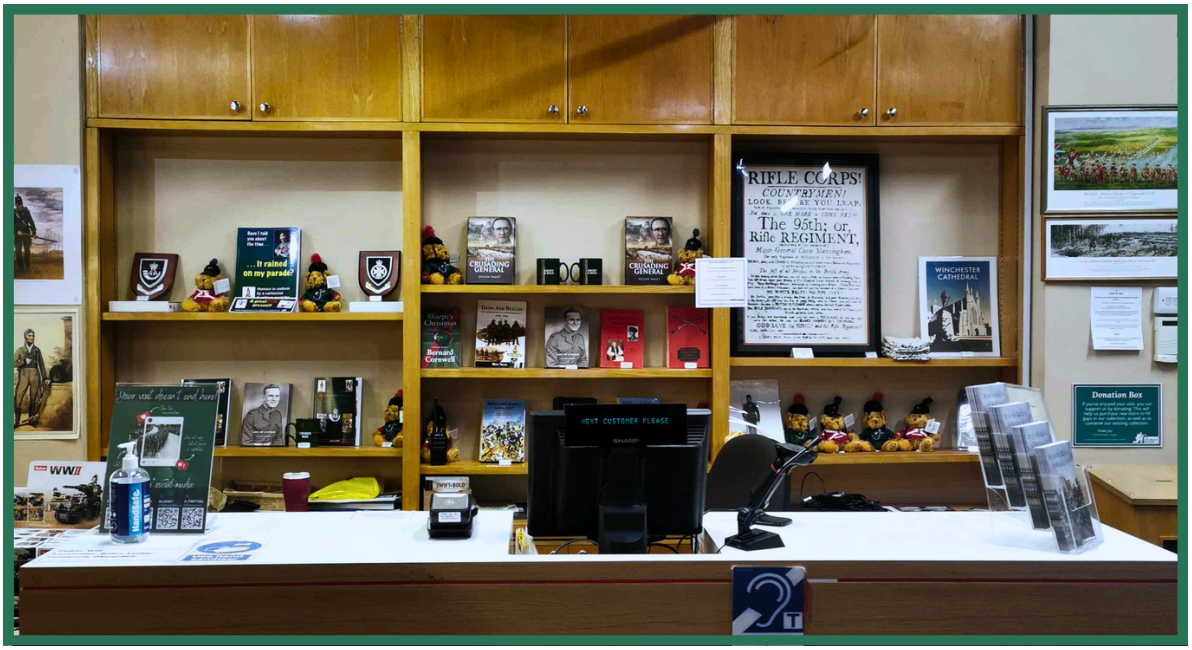

If the weather is cold, the doors might be closed, but you're welcome to come in!

Buying a Ticket

This is where your adult will buy their ticket. The volunteer behind the desk can answer any questions you have. If you get lost, you can come and ask them for help.

You can also buy items from the shop here with your pocket money!

Getting Around

The volunteer at the front desk will tell you the best way to go around the Museum so you can see everything in the right order.

The Museum covers two floors. Take care on the stairs! There's a stair lift for anybody who needs help getting up to the first floor - ask a member of staff if you need to use it.

Pretend People

We have some pretend people in the Museum to help you imagine how soldiers would have dressed. Some of them look a bit grumpy!

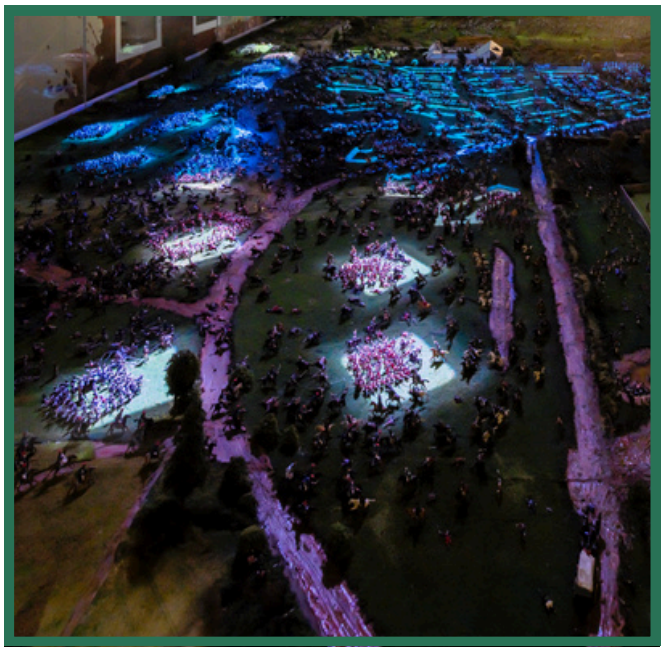

There are 2 upstairs and 9 downstairs. They won't move or make any noise.

Waterloo Diorama

Upstairs we have our famous Waterloo Diorama, a big model of the Battle of Waterloo. Every eight minutes, the room will go dark and you'll hear a voice telling you about the Battle. There will be some sounds too, such as canons firing.

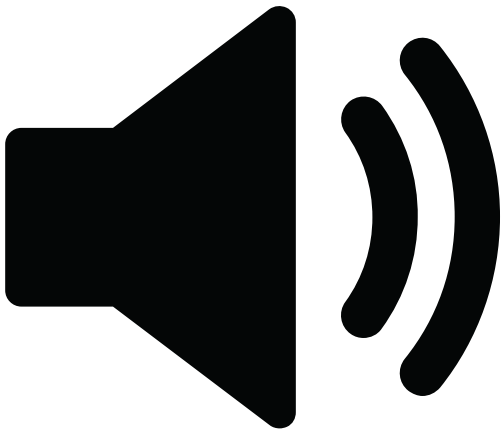

This screen will tell you how long it is until the lights will go out. A voice will tell you when the lights are going out soon.

Things to Watch and Listen to

There are places where you can hear somebody tell you more about something in the Museum or watch a film about something. Just look for this symbol!
